

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

untitled: Constance Kocs, A Solo Show

November 29th - December 7th, 2008

Reception: Saturday, November 29th, 8 – 11 PM

Somehow that old saying, “biology is destiny” keeps echoing in my head as the never-ending motto for my work’s direction. And it has nothing and everything to do with being female. It also has nothing and everything to do with having blue eyes and a particular tone of voice and a weak memory, etc. What I mean is that my language as an artist is a sort of incontrovertible fact as unalterable as my DNA. It twists and turns and doubles back on itself but then there it is. Every permutation of my work is a rekindling even when it is entirely new.

Lately, I’ve taken a new (old) interest in painting on canvas and linen. For the moment, with less color and less paint. Maybe an unintentional economizing, saving the bawdy and dramatic and decorative for the next round or an outpouring of another form altogether.

Sea and Space Explorations

4755 York Blvd, LA, CA 90042

<http://www.seaandspace.org>

Gallery is open Sundays 1–5 PM and by appointment

Tel.: 323–445–4015. email: info@seaandspace.org

